

The Final Chapter of the Heroicus Concordia

SITUATION

Topographical:

The Heroicus Concordia is a system of three planets in one of the very few warp stable routes on the Warmaster's, advance upon Terra.

Roslin:

- Desert Planet minimal population with small outposts near water sources. Primary Industry consists mainly of Mining and recovery of precious metals that come to the surface during seismic activity.
- Currently held by Loyalist Forces

Verimas IV:

- Main population centre of the system with Large Space Port capable of handling large volumes of cargo and military landing craft. It was surrounded by large multi-story buildings but have since been transformed into ruins after substantial fighting during the early stages of the conflict.
- Currently under control of the Warmaster.....just.

Tarloc:

- Agricultural hub and food basket for the entire system. Population only in place to facilitate the production of food however the production of food utilises an outdated technology to produce food and is in dire need of Mechanicum intervention to upgrade technology and improve processing capacity.
- Currently held by Loyalist Forces

Military:

After seven major military campaigns during a three-year period. Where the traitor forces have only succeeded once in having captured Veramis IV and are currently only have a minor hold over the planet itself. After a series of offensive and counter offensive, manoeuvres. The traitors currently hold the space port and what is left of the planet's capital on Veramis IV

The Loyalist forces have secured Talok and Roslin. Some Traitor elements have been seen on both planets. It is not sure exact numbers at this point. During this final stage of the engagement, It is clear at this point the Traitors intent is to hold on to space port for as long as possible allowing as many forces to re-locate to a different battle, while inflicting as many casualties to the loyalists as possible.

The Astropaths and those sensitive to the warp have sensed the shifting of the warp and impending encirclement of warp storms and the likelihood of being cut off from Terra for who knows how long. Both sides understand the importance of the space station and getting out of this system.
